FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

June 5, 2013

Kansas City’s Northeast News, an award winning community newspaper is proud to announce the release of a new book by nationally renowned outdoor writer Kenneth L. Kieser.

“Missouri’s Great Flood of 1993 - revisiting an epic natural disaster” is being released June 10th and will be available in soft or hard cover throughout the Missouri River Valley.

Through Kenny’s up close and personal experiences during the flood combined with personal interviews with those who survived the flood, Kieser weaves a compelling and introspective view in to what was called “Missouri’s 500 year flood”.

“We wanted to provide a comprehensive document of history that outlines not only how, meteorologically the flood occurred, but also how those who lived through the flood survived and rebuilt after the waters receded” said Mr. Kieser as he stood on the banks of the Missouri River near Riverside, MO.

From where the Missouri River crosses the Iowa-Missouri state line in Northwest Missouri to its confluence with the Mississippi River near St. Charles, MO, Missouri’s Great Flood of 1993 is packed full of photographs from Kieser’s personal collection as well as photographs from the Missouri Department of Transportation, the United States Geological Survey and a variety of other sources re-telling the story that gripped a nine state area in the mid-west during the summer of 1993.

If you would like to book a signing event or carry this exciting new book in your retail outlet, please contact Kenneth L. Kieser at kkieser@comcast.net or by calling the author 913-424-8128 or contact Michael Bushnell at The Northeast News (mbushnell@northeastnews.net).
